

QUARREL IN RANKS OF SUFFRAGETTES

General Jones and Colonel Craft
Are Not Speaking to Each Other.

PROGRAM IS CHANGED

Leader of Hikers Leaves Rest of Party and Makes First Entry to Baltimore.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Baltimore, Md., February 24.—A good-sized quarrel is disturbing the ranks of the suffragettes who are hiking to Washington, over the fact that General Rosalie Jones came into Baltimore last night ahead of time, leaving others of the party, who had not been notified of the change of program, to spend the night at the suburb of Overland. As a result, General Jones and Colonel H. A. Craft do not speak as they pass by. But both will continue on to Washington, as will all other members of the party, except Mrs. Georgia Williams, who stopped at the corner of the city after a short rest, and will not leave until noon to make her first entry to Baltimore. She had with her a letter from the general, in which she said that she had left the party because she was tired.

Colonel Craft objects to what she terms "six-day hikes" and to the fact that the general, while far in the lead, had changed her mind. With the general, were Elizabeth Aldrich, Elizabeth Freeman, Lyman J. Stevens and two war correspondents. They spent the night as the guests of the town, which had prepared for the entire party, and the general was notified that she would be presented with a gold medal on March 3 because she had kept the engagement.

The general is a little proud and General Jones a little jealous over the outcome of the Overland incident. But to-day the general and her little party marched into Baltimore at the head of a howling mob. She had police in front of her and a band at her side. Her smile was more noticeable than her hat, and her voice was pronounced. She entered the hotel, went to her room, arrayed herself in a black alpaca, with white ruffles at the sleeves and neck, and came down with a red hot interest in things in general. To be brief, she held forth as follows:

"I am going on to Washington, not as a follower of Rosalie Jones, but as a suffragette. I am one of the old guard. I have worked in this cause for years. If Rosalie Jones since yesterday and do not care to do not care if we never speak again."

The general was in tears. Just at that moment General Jones, in a fetching, smiling, and her charming smile, came into the hotel lobby, went straight to Colonel Craft's side and declared herself delighted that the general had arrived. Colonel Craft paid no more attention to the general than she has to the small boys along the route. Still smiling sweetly, the general tripped away as if there were nothing the matter.

The pilgrims did little but rest and make speeches to-day. To-morrow's program calls for more of the same, with the addition of a few teas, a musicale and a dinner.

There is an unofficial movement on foot to start a hike to San Francisco to the 1915 exposition. Mrs. Marie Baird, Mrs. John Boldt, Miss Phoebe Paxon and a few others of the younger contingent are for it, but General Jones will not talk about the future.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Washington, February 24.—Miss Rosalie Jones, who left New York with "General" Rosalie Jones' "army" of "hikers" arrived here to-day as the advance guard to prepare for the remainder of the "army" when it arrives Thursday.

Miss Leupp, who is the daughter of a former Commissioner of Indian Affairs, said in a speech on the hike were all in good condition, and had not greatly suffered on the tramp toward the capital. She returned to Baltimore later to be with "General" Jones on the formal entry into Washington. It has been decided that "General" Genevieve Winsatt, commander of the cavalry division of the suffrage movement, and a detachment of her troops will gallop out to Hyattsville, Md., on Thursday morning and act as the escort to the "hikers." Miss Leupp said the "army" would leave Baltimore Wednesday morning and would leave Laurel at the same hour the following morning for Washington. Miss Agnes Paul, head of the suffragette movement, to-day issued instructions that the American and suffrage flags should be carried side by side at the head of the parade on March 3, as well as at the head of each division, so that it would represent our national honor and national hope that women as well as men may be patriotic citizens."

AUTHOR OF BILL TO ABOLISH GALLOWES

Junius W. Williams, Former Member of Legislature, Dies at Courtland.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Suffolk, Va., February 24.—Hon. Junius W. Williams, of Courtland, Southampton County, died at his home there to-day, aged sixty-five years. He served his county in public life since early manhood as sheriff of Southampton County, and as a member of the State Corporation Commission and delegate to the House from Southampton County, being the only delegate from that county who was ever elected to succeed himself. He was the author of the bill permitting voters of Franklin County to elect a jury to the abolition of the dispensary, leading to the abolition of the dispensary, also of the bill abolishing the gallows as a means of capital punishment and substituting therefor the electric chair. He is said to have wielded the most potent influence in political affairs of any man in his county.

West, Mrs. Clara Williams and Miss Juanita Williams; one sister, Mrs. M. E. Story, of Franklin; two nephews, E. E. Williams, of Charlottesville, and E. Frank Story, Commonwealth's attorney of Southampton.

The funeral service will be conducted from his late home in Courtland on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. H. B. Myers. The body will be interred in Oaklawn Cemetery.

TAKEN DEPENDENT ON PUBLIC LEASURE

President Does Not Approve the Pending Public Buildings Bill.

UNDERWOOD IS INFORMED

If "Pork Barrel" Is Defeated Advocates Will Try to Pass It at Extra Session.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Washington, February 24.—It was learned here to-day from what is believed to be reliable authority that President Taft has made up his mind to veto the public buildings bill as soon as it is disposed of in Congress and sent to him for his signature. Word to this effect, it is said, has been sent from the President to Congressman Underwood, and by him transmitted to other members of the House. While this story has been current here for several days it was not traced to Mr. Underwood until to-day. It is now said that the word has come to him direct from the White House that there shall be no bill of this kind now. The reason is simple. The President thinks that $45,000,000 is too much to put in such a measure, when many of the items it covers are not greatly needed.

It is also said that if this action is taken the advocates of a building bill in the House will have to wait until the beginning of the extra session in April, and leave no stone unturned to get such a bill through. P. H. McG.

Admission Bill Passed.

Washington, February 24.—The Adams bill, requiring the Interstate Commerce Commission to ascertain the actual value of the property of all railroads, telegraph and telephone companies, and other common carriers, passed the Senate to-night at the end of a short debate, and with practically no opposition. Changes made in the bill by the Senate from the House version, which it passed the House with a conference, but it is believed all differences will be adjusted and the bill be sent to the President before this session adjourns.

The valuation bill is designed to furnish a basis recognized by the courts for fixing equitable freight, passenger and public service charges. The proposed law would require that in the valuation of property, the value of all properties held by the carrier, such as franchises, good will and "going value."

Swanson Predicts Veto.

Washington, February 24.—The annual rivers and harbors appropriation bill was passed by the Senate to-day after a prolonged fight. Amendments added to the bill by the Senate brought predictions that the measure would be vetoed by the President. The bill was in direct opposition to his expressed policies. One of these amendments was the Connecticut River dam which had been passed by the Senate a week ago. Another amendment of Virginia, made the prediction that if this feature stayed in the bill the President would veto the measure.

The bill as reported to the Senate from the House Commerce Committee carried an appropriation of $48,091,745, an increase of $7,218,757 over the amount authorized by the House. Several amendments adopted by the Senate increased the bill to $55,310,502, and these, together with the committee amendments, will be threshed out in conference with the House.

The bill of Senator Newlands, of Nevada, providing for a navigation and river regulation board to take over all river improvement work was also adopted as an amendment, after it had once been ruled out on a point of order. The measure was finally adopted, was attacked in bitter terms by Senator Burton and Owen. Senator Burton declared the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors and the Senate Committee on Commerce had no right to tamper with the bill extending the jurisdiction of the Mississippi River commission. He said this provision was the opening wedge for the expenditure of tens of millions of dollars annually, and while there were some items that were worthy of adoption, there were many others that were not. Senator Owen said the measure had been drawn in a "haphazard manner" and that while he was in favor of improving the waterways of this country, he was opposed to "pork barrel" measures of this kind.

No More Considerations.

Washington, February 24.—The House bill prescribing methods of proceeding in cases of contempt of court will not receive consideration of the Senate during the present session of Congress unless the decision of the Senate Committee on Judiciary is reached.

That committee at meeting to-day decided indefinitely to postpone consideration of the measure. The principal objection was to the provision allowing jury trials in contempt cases.

The anti-injunction bill, which also has passed the House, will receive further attention. That measure was amended by the subcommittee by striking out several provisions relating to injunctions in the interests of labor on the ground that these points are amply covered by the new rules of the Supreme Court. The bill was allowed to go over, but Chairman Clark gave assurance that a meeting would be called in ample time to permit action. Indications were favorable to the acceptance of the subcommittee's conclusions.

Millions Lost in Interest.

Washington, February 24.—The House Committee on Expenditures in the Treasury to-day in a report to the House recommended that the Ways and Means Committee, or the Banking and Currency Committee, report legislation for the safekeeping and compulsory deposit of government funds in banks and surplus working capital in the general fund of the treasury.

The report declares that while at times more than $100,000,000 is unnecessarily retained in the Treasury as part of the working balance, from $25,000,000 to $35,000,000 is ample working balance.

It says that in the last twenty-six years the government has lost $26,609,973 in not collecting interest on its deposits, figured at 2 per cent, and $17,810,869 on the excess retained in the Treasury over and above $35,000,000.

It contends that the system followed the last twenty-six years in the Treasury in relation to the handling of general fund or the working balance is crude, unbusinesslike, unprofitable and discriminatory, and that the government could increase its revenue $2,000,000 as interest on its surplus working capital if deposited in a bank under a competitive bidding system.

Costs Money to Keep Cool.

Washington, February 24.—If Senators and Representatives wish to keep cool and unfevered during their service in the Senate and House chambers

In the summer months, they must appropriate $100,000 more for the refrigeration of the chambers, according to a report submitted this afternoon by Elliott Woods, superintendent of the Capitol Building.

The last session Congress appropriated $72,000 for the refrigeration of the Senate and House chambers, and for the establishment of ice water plants in the Capitol and offices Building. Of this amount, $33,000 has been expended, leaving a balance of $39,000. Woods says in his report that bids made for refrigerating the Senate and House chambers amount to about $186,000. In consequence, nothing further has been done with the work.

At Work on Report.

Washington, February 24.—The Pajo money trust investigating committee labored until late to-night preparing its report to the House. With Samuel Undermyer, counsel for the committee, the members began work this morning, continued through the afternoon and were back at work after dinner to-night.

Mr. Undermyer's report, a voluminous document, was presented to the committee. About half of the lengthy statement was read, and the members of the committee stated it would be impossible to conclude the report in less than two or three days. After the report is read the committee will take up each subject treated by Mr. Undermyer and will consider separately his recommendations for legislation. The committee hopes to have its report completed by Friday.

BILL IS ATTACKED BY ECONOMISTS

Slow Progress Made in Consideration of Naval Appropriations.

Washington, February 24.—With the House economists attacking every paragraph with amendments or points of order, consideration of the naval appropriation bill progressed slowly to-day and to-night. Reading of the measure for amendment continued far into the night, and the section authorizing construction of two battleships, over which the great fight has been made, will not be reached until late to-morrow.

During the debate, Representative Murray, of Massachusetts, defending an appropriation for the Boston Navy Yard, referred to members opposing the bill as "take economists" and "battleship haters." He said, "The bill is a measure of economy, yet the other day when the public buildings bill was up, I noticed how they voted for it."

"For years and years," replied Representative Tribble, "all the appropriations of this government have been voted into the large cities like Boston and New York, and other places in the East and West. And, forsooth, because the people of the South are now coming into their own, in a small degree, and securing some appropriations, it is because the government has been gubbing up everything all of these years to come here and criticize us for trying to get something."

An amendment by Representative Hendley, of Missouri, was adopted, which would provide that the four years spent at the Naval Academy shall not be counted as a part of the service in the Navy. The effect would be to increase the length of enlistment required for retirement from thirty to thirty-four years. Representative Hobson, of Alabama, vigorously opposed the amendment, insisting that the midshipmen actually were in service and subject to duty at the front in time of war.

Representative J. Hampton Moore, of Pennsylvania, offered an amendment to a paragraph appropriating $4,600,000 for naval supplies and equipment to prohibit the purchase of any material brought in under the "free ship material" provision of the Panama Canal act. He declared these demands by inserting the provision in the canal act, had upset the entire tariff system and put cheap European labor in competition with the American workingman. The amendment was defeated by a strictly party vote. Another amendment, which bar supplies and equipment manufactured or labor employed in excess of eight hours met a similar fate.

ALLEGED LABOR TRUST ATTACKED

Federal Government Files Suit Against Unions of Electrical Workers.

ACTION RESULT OF STRIKE

It Is Brought About by Fight Against Postal Telegraph-
Cable Company.

Chicago, February 24.—An alleged labor trust was attacked by the Federal government in a civil suit filed here to-day against local unions Nos. 9 and 134, of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, engaged in a strike against the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company.

As part of the labor war against the telegraph company, the government charges officers and employees of the union with conspiring and conspiring through acts of violence and depredations, to injure the Postal telegraph wires to interfere with the transmission of government and commercial messages in interstate commerce. The alleged interference is declared to have been deliberate.

While restraint of interstate commerce is alleged, the Sherman law is not specifically mentioned in the government's bill of complaint, which generally declares that the defendants allegedly unlawful acts have violated the rights granted under the Constitution of the United States to the telegraph company and the senders of messages. The government asked that the defendants be enjoined from obstructing interstate and government messages over the Postal, by cutting, burning or otherwise injuring telegraph lines, and from interfering by threats, intimidation, persuasion or force with employees or prospective employees of the company, and by hearing, the petition pleads for a final and permanent injunction against the alleged unlawful acts.

The following are named as defendants: International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, local unions No. 9 and 134, Martin J. Healy, Michael J. Boyle, William J. Sloan, W. N. Harris, E. M. Lammie, J. J. Elliott, W. Conrad, E. D. Shanker, G. Floriani, J. J. Minetti, Warner, W. Sinclair, S. O. Minetti, V. Beckner, F. S. Allen, H. Coghill, M. O'Day, J. E. Carroll, Jr., J. Gaul, Bert Coghill and Frank H. Carroll, all of Chicago.

Labor trouble between the Postal and the electrical unions arose in September last, when it is alleged, union officials insisted that the telegraph company should establish the "closed shop" policy. The company refused.

It is added, because it would have necessitated the discharging of old and faithful employees not members of the union. At this stage, when a strike was imminent, the government says the telegraph company on October 15 discharged employees who were members of the unions and supplied their places with nonmembers.

Threats against officers and employees of the telegraph company immediately followed. It is charged, acts of violence began to be committed daily in Chicago against the company's property.
